DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The recitation of the "MIB" recited at line 2 is not clearly defined. Note that, the specification also fails to define such term.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 1-4, and 6-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Rekai et al (US 2003/0095591).

Regarding claims 1-4, 6, 9, 10, 17, and 20-24, Rekai, as shown in figures 1, 3, and 4, teaches a method for identifying a service affecting the condition of the ADSL network between the modems located at the central office and remote site wherein the characteristics of the subscriber line are determined and the results are used to identify the service that affecting the condition of the line. See also paragraphs [0003] – [0009], [0014] – [0019], and [0050].

Regarding claims 7, 8, 18 and 19, Rekai further teaches measuring the length of the line. See [0014].

Regarding claims 11-14, Rekai further teaches reporting the test results using graph. See [0019].

Regarding claims 15, 16, and 24-27, Rekai further teaches using tones testing. See [0007], [0014] and [0047].

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rekai et al (US 2003/0095591).

Rekai teaches all subject matter claimed except for the use of the MIB interface. See explanation in paragraph 4 above. Note also the rejection in paragraph 2 above to which the term is not clearly defined. However, it is believed that the term is standing for Management Information Base and it is well known in the art of testing the subscriber line. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the system of Rekai by employing the MIB if it is desired to use software based for analyzing the test and thus, reducing the hardware complexity.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. References Tzannes (US 2002/0009155) and Galarza et al (6,970,415) are cited because they are pertinent to fault detecting of the ADSL subscriber line.
